- 1737 Psalter Davidis, a beautiful and very early manuscript, with large illuminations and floreated borders, in red morocco. This book has the autograph of "Doroty Washingtoun,"—it has also been in the possession of the Rawson Family and the Parkers, one of whom has made it a receipt book, and otherwise maltreated it.
- 1738 HORÆ VIRGINIS, an early manuscript, with richly embossed and illuminated capitals, each of which is drawn round a Nielli, of which there are twelve, composing the Life of the Virgin
- 1739 MISSALE ROMANUM, an early manuscript, containing 24 large illuminations; the Calender contains verses and many singular historical notices, with a register of the family of Wilson, to whom it appears to have belonged from the time of Elizabeth to Charles II.
- 1740 A MOST SINGULAR AND HIGHLY INTERESTING COLLECTION OF DEEDS, LEASES, RE-LEASES, GIFTS AND CHARTERS, RELATING TO THE MONASTERY OF SAINT MARIA DE BELLALANDA, BEGLAND OR BYLAND, IN YORKSHIRE; one of them having a portion of a silk surcoat or banner sewed up with it, bearing the arms of England in the days of the Norman Kings, and almost all having the seals appended, and in the most choice state of preservation, with an ancient transcript of them; 12 others, and several detached seals

LOT

1741 SEVERAL VERY ANCIENT DEEDS RELATING TO LINCOLNSHIRE; one in the reign of King John, with the seal attached

1742 A small box containing the Diary of a Physician in the reign of William III, very closely written on many pages, and containing many extraordinary notices, besides the prescriptions recommended. The Dr. seems to have lived in the vicinity of Wakefield, and to have been a very considerable benefactor to the poor; his private practice seems to have been considerably great. This "Diary of a Physician" is of much importance as an unpublished literary curiosity; the Physician's name appears to have been Kaye, from the allusions to his relations; he mentions "a large Battle of King William in Flanders," &c.

Some of the Statues were part of the Gallery of Freidrich August, King of Poland, who died in 1733, and were placed in the corridors of the Palace of the Grosse Garten at Dresden. In 1745, Freidrich the Great of Prussia despoiled Dresden, and removed the most valuable objects of art for the embellishment of his Palaces at Potsdam. At the Peace of Hubertsburg, in 1763, the works of art thus plundered were restored and replaced in their former positions. In 1813, the great Battle of Dresden was principally fought in the Grosse Garten, and many of the statues consequently damaged. The corridors of the Palace remained closed, till, on the death of the late King of Saxony in 1836, his successor, Freidrich August, being desirous of effecting some improvements in the Palace, was advised to bring the Statues to Auction. The purchaser placed them in the hands of Petrich and Neuhäuser, who with the assistance of Leplat's engravings of the Dresden Gallery, restored them to their present condition; they were subsequently brought to England, and those in the present Collection purchased by the late Mr. Mainwaring.
